Tempo di Valse.

Piano.

With careless tread, a maiden takes her path down youth's rosy way, Her heart is light, The world is bright And life seems one long summer day. She little knows, her heart within, A seed divine is deeply hidden, And that one hour 'Twill come to flower And fill her life with love unhidden. Laugh little maiden,

All the day through, Sing, little maiden, Merrily.

Old though your theme Perchance may seem, 'Tis all other songs above.

Sing, little maiden, Sing from your heart, To welcome the dawn of love!

The dawn of love.
With new born hope she understands The songs of spring that haunt the air. She knows full well What weaves the spell, And why it is the rose is fair. In trembling breeze she seems to find An
