(Violinsky)

If the moon is bright,
It is hard to kiss

on a summer night,
When you're strolling in the park,

any bashful miss,
In the bright light any time,

And you'd like a kiss, from your pretty miss,
She will blush and say, you must go away,
Be it sun or moon that dark,
'Sneath the sheltering trees, you will find at ease,
Shines; So beware of light, when you're out at night,

It's the proper place to spoon; When the pretty maid,
And you want to spoon and spark; You will find it's not won't seem so afraid, When she's hiding from the moon, hard to find a spot, But be sure it is quite dark.

Note: "Hide from the light of the moon" is mentioned at the bottom of the page.
CHORUS

Hide from the light... of the sil-ver-y moon...

When you're with the girl you love... It won't seem right, if you spoon in the light... of the big moon up a-bove...

It seems the moon always brightly shines, When two lovers want to spoon, But take my advice, it will be twice as nice, If you hide from the silver moon, moon.......

Hide from the light of the moon.
