If You'll Be My Eve
(I'll Build an Eden for You)

Words by
JAMES W. JOHNSON

Music by
J. ROSAMOND JOHNSON

Moderato.

Said a blushing youth to a maiden one day,
Then the maiden lifted her drooping head,
And her eyes grew moist, her cheeks blushed like a rose,
A blush'd red

Copyright MCMXII by Jos. W. Stern & Co.
British Copyright Secured
English Theatre and Music Hall rights strictly reserved Deposited conforme a la ley de Republica Mexicana, en el ano MCMXII por Jos. W. Stern y Cia., Propietarios Nueva York y Mexico.
quasi Religioso

you: And the maid though undesirous, But her heart had long been guessing, What the poco rall. quasi Religioso sex, was quite divine, So she drooped her eyes and bowed her youth was then confessing, For the same sweet song has been the modest head, While the ardent lover took her hand and said, song of man, From the first young lover since the world began.

(Chorus) Allegro molto con espressione

If you'll be my Eve I'll build an Eden for you, A

Allegro molto con espressione Garden of Eden all for you; With roses red to say how much I love you; And violets to say that I'll be true.
Sweet heart, then come with me and be just my own, I'll give all my love to you alone.

If you will be my Eve I'll build an Eden for you, A Garden of Eden all for you.

If you,