SARA BRUTON, VOICE

AMANDA SHERILL, PIANO

KATHLEEN STRAHM, VIOLIN

DOCTORAL RECITAL SERIES
RECITAL HALL
FEBRUARY 8, 2017 • 7:30

Herberger Institute FOR DESIGN AND THE ARTS
ARIZONA STATE UNIVERSITY

School of Music Program

I

Beau Soir
Pleure dans mon Coeur Romance
Chevaux de bois

II

Berlin im Licht
Es regnet
Nanna's Lied

II

Claude Debussy
Kurt Weill

(1862-1918)
(1900-1950)

There will be a 10-minute intermission

III

Alphabet City Cycle
With Kathleen Strahm, Violin

The Wanting of You
The student on Avenue B

Almost Everything I Need
The divorcee on Avenue C

I Hardly Remember
The Widow on Avenue D

Lyrics: Marcy Heisler
(b. 1967)

Blanket in July
The Jilted Actress in Tompkins Square Park

Sunday Light
The Lover on Avenue A

IV

Alto's Lament
15 Pounds
I Want Them...Bald

Zina Goldrich
Lyrics: Marcy Heisler
(b. 1967)
(b. 196)

Nanna's Lied
Bertolt Brecht
(1898-1956)

1. Gentlemen, I was only seventeen when I landed on the love market. And I learned a lot of things—mostly bad, but that was the game. Still I resented much of it. (After all, I am a human being.)

Refrain:
Thank God, it all goes by quickly—both the love and the sorrow. Where are the tears of last night? Where are the snows of years gone by?

2. As the years go by, it gets easier on the love market—easier to embrace a whole troop there. But it's amazing how your feelings cool off when you're stingy with them. (After all, everything gets used up eventually.)

(Refrain)

3. And although you learn the tricks of the trade on the love market, it's never easy to convert lust into small change. Still it can be done, but meanwhile you get a little older. (After all, you can't stay seventeen forever.)

(Refrain)

Translation by Kim H. Kowalke
So what then? What kind of a city is it?

Come on, turn on the lights so we can see what there is to see. Come on, turn on the lights and don’t say another word. Come on, turn on the lights so we can see for sure what the big deal is: Berlin in Lights.

Translation by Kim H. Kowalke

Es regnet
Kurt Weill
(1900-1950)

I ask nothing. I must not ask. You have told me not to. But do I hear your car? Then I think, should I say something? Or should I say nothing? It’s all said in your look. Do you believe that only the mouth speaks? Eyes are like windows. One can always see through any window. And if you close them, everything seems worse. My eyes hear something different from from my ears. I was born to bear pain. Let me look through the window. Let me look! The sun can no longer shine. “It’s raining,” says the window. It says only what it thinks. Let us weep together!

Translation by Kim H. Kowalke

Beau Soir
Paul Bourget
(1852-1935)

When streams turn pink in the setting sun, And a slight shudder rushes through the wheat fields, A plea for happiness seems to rise out of all things And it climbs up towards the troubled heart.

A plea to relish the charm of life While there is youth and the evening is fair, For we pass away, as the wave passes: The wave to the sea, we to the grave.

Translation by Leslie McEwen

Il Pleure Dans Mon Coeur
Paul Verlaine
(1844-1896)

There is weeping in my heart like the rain falling on the town. What is this languor that pervades my heart? Oh the patter of the rain on the ground and the roofs! For a heart growing weary oh the song of the rain!

There is weeping without cause in this disheartened heart. What! No betrayal? There’s no reason for this grief. Truly the worst pain is not knowing why, without love or hatred, my heart feels so much pain.

Translation by Peter Low

Romance

Paul Bourget
(1852-1935)

The vanishing and suffering soul,
The sweet soul, the fragrant soul
Of divine lilies that I have picked
In the garden of your thoughts,
Where, then, have the winds chased it,
This charming soul of the lilies?
Is there no longer a perfume that remains
Of the celestial sweetness
Of the days when you enveloped me
In a supernatural haze,
Made of hope, of faithful love,
Of bliss and of peace?

Translation by Korin Kormick

Chevaux de Bois

Paul Verlain
(1844-1896)

Turn, turn, good horses of wood,
turn a hundred turns, turn a thousand turns,
turn often and turn always,
turn, turn to the sound of the oboes.

The red-faced child and pale mother,
the boy in black and the girl in pink,
the one pursuing and the other posing,
each getting a penny's worth of Sunday fun.

Turn, turn, horses of their hearts,

while all around your turning squints the sly pickpocket's eye -- turn to the sound of the victorious cornet.

It is astonishing how it intoxicates you to go around this way in a stupid circle, nothing in your tummy and an ache in your head,
very sick and having lots of fun.

Turn, wooden horses, with no need ever to use spurs to command you to gallop around,
turn, turn, with no hope for hay.

And hurry, horses of their souls-- hear the supper bell already, the night that is falling and chasing the troop of merry drinkers, famished by their thirst.

Turn, turn! The velvet sky is slowly clothed with golden stars.
The church bell tolls sadly.
Turn, to the happy sound of drums.

Translation by John Glenn Paton

Berlin im Licht

Kurt Weill
(1900-1950)

Sunshine may be enough when you go for a walk, but the sun isn't enough to light up the city of Berlin.
It's no little hick-town, it's one helluva city!
If you want to see everything there,
you've got to use a few watts.
So what then? What kind of a city is it?

Come on, turn on the lights so we can see what there is to see.
Come on, turn on the lights and don't say another word.
Come on, turn on the lights so we can see for sure what the big deal is:
Berlin in Lights.

Translation by Kim H. Kowalke

Es regnet

Kurt Weill
(1900-1950)

I ask nothing. I must not ask.
You have told me not to.
But do I hear your car? Then I think, should I say something? Or should I just say nothing?
It's all said in your look.
Do you believe that only the mouth speaks?
Eyes are like windows. One can always see through any window. And if you close them, everything seems worse. My eyes hear something different from my ears.
I was born to bear pain. Let me look through the window. Let me look!
The sun can no longer shine. “It's raining,” says the window. It says only what it thinks. Let us weep together!

Translation by Kim H. Kowalke

Beau Soir

Paul Bourget
(1852-1935)

When streams turn pink in the setting sun,
And a slight shudder rushes through the wheat fields,
A plea for happiness seems to rise out of all things
And it climbs up towards the troubled heart.

A plea to relish the charm of life
While there is youth and the evening is fair,
For we pass away, as the wave passes:
The wave to the sea, we to the grave.

Translation by Leslie McEwen

Il Pleure Dans Mon Coeur

Paul Verlaine
(1844-1896)

There is weeping in my heart
like the rain falling on the town.
What is this languor that pervades my heart?

Oh the patter of the rain
on the ground and the roofs!
For a heart growing weary
oh the song of the rain!

There is weeping without cause in this disheartened heart.
What! No betrayal?
There's no reason for this grief.
Truly the worst pain
is not knowing why,
without love or hatred,
Program

I

<table> <thead>
<tr>
<th>Song</th>
<th>Composers</th>
</tr> </thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Beau Soir</td>
<td>Claude Debussy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>II Pleure dans mon Coeur</td>
<td>(1862-1918)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Romance</td>
<td>Kurt Weill</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chevaux de bois</td>
<td>(1900-1950)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Berlin im Licht</td>
<td>Kurt Weill</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Es regnet</td>
<td>(1900-1950)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nanna's Lied</td>
<td></td>
</tr> </tbody>
</table>

There will be a 10-minute intermission

II

<table> <thead>
<tr>
<th>Cycle</th>
<th>Violinist</th>
</tr> </thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Alphabet City Cycle</td>
<td>Kathleen Strahm</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Wanting of You</td>
<td>Georgia Stitt</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Almost Everything I Need</td>
<td>(b. 1972)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I Hardly Remember</td>
<td>Lyrics: Marcy Heisler</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Blanket in July</td>
<td>(b. 1967)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sunday Light</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Alto's Lament</td>
<td>Zina Goldrich</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>15 Pounds</td>
<td>(b. 1967)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I Want Them...Bald</td>
<td>Lyrics: Marcy Heisler</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Translation by Kim H. Kowalke

Nanna's Lied

Bertolt Brecht

(1898-1956)

1. Gentlemen, I was only seventeen when I landed on the love market. And I learned a lot of things—mostly bad, but that was the game. Still I resented much of it.
(After all, I am a human being.)
Refrain:
Thank God, it all goes by quickly—both the love and the sorrow. Where are the tears of last night? Where are the snows of years gone by?

2. As the years go by, it gets easier on the love market—easier to embrace a whole troop there.
But it's amazing how your feelings cool off when you're stingy with them. (After all, everything gets used up eventually.)
(Refrain)

3. And although you learn the tricks of the trade on the love market, it's never easy to convert lust into small change. Still it can be done, but meanwhile you get a little older. (After all, you can't stay seventeen forever.)
(Refrain)