Theirs sweet perfume, teach the lovers how to spoon. The honeybee says "Good-bye."
To the rose with a sigh, Nightingale flies away, For he's finished the day.
If I could find the little girl I have in mind, Where poppies bloom,
There'd be another bride and groom, to till and croon, Where every dewdrop in love,
Bright stars above, There's broken hearts in the land where poppies bloom, Where poppies bloom.
