Patricia Brady is currently Professor of Piano in the School of Music at James Madison University in Harrisonburg, Virginia. A graduate of Indiana University, Dr. Brady’s major teachers have included James Tocco, Sidney Foster, and Daniel Fletcher. Further study and master classes include coaching with George Bolet, Abbey Simon, and Luis de Moura Castro. In addition to teaching piano and piano pedagogy at JMU, Dr. Brady has performed as soloist and collaborative artist in the United States and abroad. Featured in Dr. Brady’s solo recital repertoire are the Rachmaninoff Etudes-Tableaux (the topic of a doctoral dissertation and subsequent lecture-recitals), French music of the late nineteenth and early 20th centuries and works of contemporary women composers. In recent years, a comprehensive study of the piano works of the French composer Albert Roussel resulted in performances of Roussel’s music (solo and chamber works) in the U.S., France, Belgium and Portugal, and designation as artist in residence for the Roussel Festival Concert Series in France and Belgium in 2004. Another area of research and performance has focused on visual associations in piano works—and their relationships to art works—from the late 19th century to the present. Lecture-recitals have explored the significance of color, light, and atmosphere in the piano music of Liszt, Debussy, Ravel, Griffes, Bartok, Prokofiev, and George Crumb. In the area of pedagogy, Dr. Brady has pioneered strategies for incorporating composition and collaborative performance as part of a regular regimen of music study for pianists at the pre-college and college levels. In addition to teaching at JMU, Dr. Brady also maintains a private piano studio and is active in Virginia and neighboring states as a clinician, adjudicator, and officer for local and state music teacher organizations.

Soprano Dorothy Maddison graduated from St. Olaf College, Minnesota, with honors and distinction. She completed her Master Degree and Doctor of Musical Arts in vocal performance at Arizona State University. During her professional career in Europe, she performed with the Stadttheater of Dobeln, Germany, singing the roles of Olympia, Antonia, Guilietta and Stella in Les Contes d’Hoffmann, Lucia in Lucia di Lammermoor, Euridice in Offenbach’s Orphée aux Enfers, and Susanna in Le Nozze di Figaro. She toured Germany singing Christine in the Yeston-Kopit version of Phantom of the Opera. Dr. Maddison is co-author of the book Kein’ Angst Baby!, a guide book to help English speaking singers survive the German audition process. As a concert artist, her work includes the CD Christmas Art Songs, with Mario Balzi, pianist. Most recently she has completed a CD Songs for Brenda and Bertha featuring the song cycles ME (Brenda Ueland) and Brautlieder by Peter Cornelius. She is a professor of voice and opera at James Madison University in Harrisonburg, Virginia. She has performed with the JMU Symphony Orchestras and Bands in their "pops" and classical settings, as well as in the Contemporary Music Festival and as a soloist in the Bach's Christmas Oratorio and Handel’s Messiah. Off-campus, she has appeared as the soprano soloist in John Rutter’s Requiem in London, England.
